Family Farmers Need Fair and Competitive Markets

Independent family farmers and ranchers are the bedrock of America’s rural communities and economies. But their livelihoods are at risk because a handful of giant agribusinesses hold disproportionate market power.

Increasingly, the largest meatpackers and processors control all stages of production. They force farmers into one-sided contracts, form exclusive relationships with large producers, and depress the prices that farmers receive. These practices eliminate market transparency, facilitate price manipulation, undermine the livelihoods of independent farmers and ranchers, and threaten farmers’ ability to adopt sustainable production practices. Uncompetitive markets have forced independent family farmers off the land and damaged rural economies, our environment, the quality and safety of our food, and the livelihoods of food workers throughout the supply chain.

Every agricultural sector suffers from the effects of extreme corporate control and requires policy that will rebalance the economic relationships between farmers, ranchers, consumers, workers, and food companies. The list of recommendations below focuses on needs specific to the livestock and poultry sectors, though it also touches on issues of concern to all of agriculture.

To revitalize independent family farm agriculture, we need the federal government to restore competition to agriculture and ensure a level playing field for all farmers and ranchers. Our organizations call for action to:

Enforce and Strengthen Antitrust and Fair Practice Laws

- Make clear that individual farmers do not need to show anti-competitive impact on the entire industry in order to pursue a complaint under the Packers & Stockyards Act (PSA).
- Prohibit meatpackers from procuring livestock for slaughter through the use of a forward contract unless the contract contains a firm base price and is bid in an open, public manner.
- Prohibit meatpacker ownership of livestock more than 14 days prior to slaughter.
- Provide USDA with necessary administrative authority under the PSA to take enforcement action against unfair and deceptive company practices in their dealings with contract poultry growers.
- Eliminate "pro-competitive effects" or "legitimate business justifications" as defenses to claims arising from a meatpackers' violation of conduct prohibited under the PSA.

- Provide for the award of attorney fees by companies in farmers and ranchers' successful claims under the PSA.

- Prohibit companies from requiring any additional capital investment in contract growing facilities, unless growers are additionally and fairly compensated at the time of the upgrade and require companies to reimburse growers for contractually required capital investments if the contract is cancelled prematurely without cause.

- Prohibit the use of a tournament or ranking system for paying contract growers for their capital and services, or any payment mechanism that is based primarily on factors outside the control of the grower.

- Prohibit poultry companies, meatpackers or swine contractors from retaliating against livestock and poultry farmers for talking to their Member of Congress or other federal officials regarding their contracts or marketing arrangements, for making lawful disclosures related to potential violations of the PSA, or for joining together in producer associations.

Ensure Fair Farm Credit

- Ensure fair, consistent application of farm credit equitable relief so that the farm land of family farmers is adequately protected when private and government lenders make detrimental errors in loan making and loan servicing.

- Ensure lenders are held accountable for compliance with the Equal Credit Opportunity Act regulations and provide consistent service to all farmers.

Restore Mandatory Country-of-Origin Labeling for Beef and Pork

- Restore and expand mandatory country-of-origin labeling requirements for beef, pork and other commodities to include more establishments and amend the 1989 Foreign Products Rule to require that all imported meat products retain a foreign label through retail sale.
Stop Subsidizing Overproduction

- Ensure that the loan guarantee programs run by USDA and the Small Business Administration do not contribute to overproduction or unfair market conditions by prohibiting government loan guarantees for new contract poultry or hog operations, except for specialty market growers that are not concentrated animal feeding operations.

Break Up Food and Agriculture Monopolies

- Institute a moratorium on new mergers of food, agriculture or food processing companies to stem the tide of mega-mergers that have driven unprecedented consolidation in the agriculture sector.

- Conduct a thorough evaluation of the effects that previous mergers have had on the competitiveness of markets for family farmers and ranchers and roll back mergers that have reduced competition.

- Create a Special Counsel’s office on agricultural consolidation to effectively coordinate between agencies with jurisdiction over competition policy, including enforcement of the PSA and antitrust laws and oversight over the level of control by foreign corporations of farmland, processing infrastructure, and livestock.

Stop Subsidizing Foreign Corporations

- Prohibit federal procurement programs from buying meat from animals born, raised or slaughtered outside the U.S.

- Require that proposed mergers or acquisitions of U.S.-based companies by foreign companies be reviewed in light of the United States’ food security interests.

Level the Playing Field for Independent Processors

- Address the bias in food safety regulations toward large corporate slaughter and processing facilities, by providing technical assistance, revamping food safety guidance to address issues common to small and very small processing facilities, basing microbiological testing requirements on volume of production and conducting investigations to find the source of contamination when it is first detected at small processing plants that do not slaughter animals.
- Encourage the renovation of small livestock processing plants, the establishment of new livestock processing plants where there are shortages, and assist both new and existing smaller plants in meeting standards for interstate marketing.
